

The title "Lory Dory" is written in a large, red, cursive font. The letters are thick and have a slightly textured appearance. The background is a solid, bright yellow. Surrounding the text are various hand-drawn doodles in blue and green. In the top left, there is a blue sun with a smiling face and radiating lines. To its right are several blue clouds of different shapes. Below the sun is a green spiral. To the right of the text, there is a blue pencil with a pink eraser. Below the pencil is a blue fan-like shape. At the bottom left, there is a green fish-like shape. At the bottom right, there is a green shadow-like shape. Small blue dots and dashes are scattered throughout the yellow background.

Lory Dory

BRENDON O'NEIL | SONIA DEARLING | ARTHUR ATTWELL

One night Grandpa was tucking me in.
His hands were soft and his hair was thin.

'I'm going to tell you a special story, about a girl named Lory Dory.'

You couldn't see Lory Dory at all because she was born invisible.

You'd only see Lory when rain hit her head, or when she was curled under blankets in bed.

Lory was left out of all the kids' games. They teased her and they called her names.

'Look, it's Lory. The Imaginary Friend! She's not like us, she's just pretend!'

One day at school, a boy wanted to know:
'How do you look? I only see you in snow.'

'Can you paint yourself?' Lory knew that she could.
But not in the same way the boy thought she would.

Lory painted her body with all that she loved from the world
all around and the sky up above.

She painted herself every day with such pride, to bring out the person who she was inside.

I know I'm invisible and hard to see.
So I painted these pictures to show the real me.'

'Are you making this up, Gramps? Is this story true?'
'Lory is real – real as me, real as you.'

When Grandpa had left me, I can't quite be sure, but I think I saw Lory just outside my door.

Lory Dory

Created by Sonia Dearling, Brendan O'Neill,
Arthur Attwell

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License . This means you are free to share (copy and redistribute the material in any medium or format) and adapt it (remix, transform, and build upon the material) for any purpose, even commercially, as long as you give appropriate credit, with a link to your source, and indicate if changes were made. You may do so in any reasonable manner, but not in any way that suggests the licensor endorses you or your use.

